

Third-Party Providers

To enable us to provide the Services and to support their continued development, we may contract third-party providers. This document details important information about each third-party provider's identity, location and role.

What is a third-party provider?

Third-party providers act as a processor under the General Data Protection Regulation concerning your data. Third-party providers process data on our behalf and in accordance with the provisions of the contract concluded with us.

Before contracting a third-party provider, we make reasonable efforts to determine whether it offers sufficient guarantees for implementing appropriate technical and organisational measures so that data processing complies with the requirements of the applicable legislation regarding security, privacy and protecting the rights of data subjects.

Google	Dublin, Ireland	Site analytics
Hotjar	St. Julians, Malta	Site analytics
Discord	Amsterdam, Netherlands	Community and customer support
Stripe	Dublin, Ireland	Payment processor
Microsoft	Dublin, Ireland	Hosting and infrastructure

Modifications

We may change the third-party providers we employ based on the needs of the Services and how our business evolves. We will notify you of the contracting of a new third-party provider in accordance with the obligations assumed under the Contract and post any changes here. We recommend that you check this page regularly.